Contact Me

I was born and raised in Michigan, growing up in the small town of South Lyon. From a young age, I discovered my love for creating—whether it was building Legos or programming robots with my dad. These early experiences laid the foundation for my passion in technology and problem-solving, eventually bringing me to Michigan State University to study Computer Science.

In my free time, I enjoy exploring emerging tech trends and designing projects that blend aesthetics with practicality. Whether it's crafting responsive web designs or engineering complex systems, I thrive on opportunities that push the boundaries of my technical and creative abilities.
